President*

Responsibilities and Areas of Expertise

As executive vice president of Construction Systems Inc. (CSI), Andy oversees budgeting and general trades contracting. He specializes in renovations of downtown office, medical and banking facilities.

Andy joined the company in 1969 as an office and warehouse manager and brings a unique combination of talent and experience to the construction process and to CSI clients. After 37 years with CSI, Andy has held almost every position at the company from forklift operator, to field superintendent, to vice president, to his current role as executive vice president.

Andy has supervised hundreds of hourly employees while managing the materials, tools and equipment to service more than 50 projects at a time. His natural curiosity and genuine interest in learning, combined with his deep knowledge of construction techniques, product systems and procedures, enables him to provide exemplary service to his clients.

Andy has been the driving force behind CSI's development of a general trades renovation capability to service facility managers featuring self performance.

Andy has led the development of a proprietary budgeting process, with years of input and thousands of projects, allowing CSI to respond with a highly accurate budget typically within a day, if necessary.
